Blames Intrigue of Huns for Turkey's Help for Germany

GENEVA, Jan. 11. (By the Associated Press.)—German intrigue and political machinations by the Young Turk party put Turkey by the side of the central powers in the war, according to Prince Sabah Eddine, nephew of the present sultan and leader of the Turkish liberal opposition party, who is here on his way to Constantinople. "Turkey was forced into the war by German intrigue and political machinations against the interests and traditions of our people," the prince said today. "I was called from Turkey for many years, honest and just government for all of my countrymen without distinction as to race or religion. I have never ceased my endeavors to realize this ideal, to be attained in harmony with the Anglo-Saxon nations."

PEACE CONFERENCE DELAY SOURCE OF DISAPPOINTMENT

that continued peace in Europe will not be possible if the next few months of the conference period in German internal affairs must involve the drawn-out strangulation of German industries, making impossible the employment of her demobilized armies or the resumption of her normal industrial processes whereby the government may be enabled to stop total disarmament. The American delegation, therefore, has said to the looking-alike at the numerous proposals made in some quarters that indemnities be imposed of such a size that Germany for the first 20 years may be kept in danger of chronic state of bankruptcy.

On the other hand, they are also looking-alike at the proposal that the blockade be too long maintained, thereby preventing any business revival for many months to come, possibly years, if the Bolshevik government comes into power in Germany.

Allies Get Start

It is well understood among Americans here, however, that the maintenance of the condition of Germany and of the blockade is enabling our allies to get a much needed start before allowing the Germans free access to other markets. The American delegates nevertheless are inclined to point out certain disadvantages which must accrue to the United States by reason of dilatory action in arranging all final peace conditions.

For one thing, it is believed that if an early resumption of commerce can be arranged the goods which the United States has produced, under government stimulation and at high cost, can be disposed of to better advantage as regards prices. Further, the American delegates are firmly convinced that Germany is in the greatest danger of going over precipitously into Bolshevism unless at least partial disarmament is achieved. The American delegates are also convinced that the United States army be used to police Europe, it can be stated with all certainty that it is not the intention of the American delegates to withdraw the American soldiers from Europe.

The key to the whole situation lies in the attitude taken by the allies toward the new governments of Russia and Germany. While individuals of France and of Great Britain subjects such as the league of nations, freedom of the seas, disarmament and even matters affecting national boundaries, such discussions are so far futile and almost academic. There has been no conference on the part of anyone which might be called even quasi-official. The delegates of Great Britain have not yet arrived in Paris, although they are expected, as are the Italians, at the end of this week. All the progress that can be reported is that President Wilson has used, perhaps involuntarily, his month of trips to England and Italy, which he had expected to visit led to confirm his principle that there must be a league of nations so as to prevent another war.

Come See the Essex

Its First Showing—A Light Weight Quality Car

Next Thursday—$1395

Motorists will have their first sight of the Essex next Thursday, January 16th. It is the car which motor papers have mentioned so frequently during the past year as a new solution of automobile transportation. Automobiles have been developed along two widely different lines. One has been toward a cheap, light car. Economy and low first cost have been its chief advantages. The other has been toward luxury, comfort and endurance. It has meant high first cost and heavy maintenance expense. The Essex combines the advantages of these two types. It is moderately priced, and economical in operation. It has no useless weight. Its performance, comfort and finish, to the minutest detail, is comparable to that which you could get only in high-priced cars.

Be One of the First to Ride In It

We begin public demonstrations of the Essex on Thursday. Hundreds of other dealers in all parts of the country are making their first showing of the Essex on that day. If you will come in on Thursday, or better still, telephone that you will be on hand, we will arrange to demonstrate the Essex to you so that you can be one of the first in this community to ride in this new car.

The Essex is to do its own advertising. Whatever you hear of it in the future will be whatever people choose to say about it. No descriptions are to be advertised until hundreds of thousands of motorists have said what they think of the Essex.

It is to be sold on the merits of its performance, and not by what we or the makers may claim for it. That is the way the Essex was introduced to us. We were invited to the factory. A lot of conjecture had been advanced about the Essex, but the makers would give us no particulars.
